PROFILE

Hello! I'm CC. A front-end developer and designer. I am a person who enjoys a lot of generating new ideas and solutions. Along the way, I am also curious to learn new things. Front-end development is one of the things I have started to learn because of that. I am from a design background instead of CS. However, the rich design experience allows me to collaborate better with designers. And through developing architectural projects, I became experienced in problem-solving and communication. Compared to architectural projects, front-end development projects give me more satisfaction as I can see how my products are working and fulfilling daily needs more clearly. So I am excited to engage in this field and appreciate any chances to go further as a developer.
